THIRTY MINERS MET A HORRIBLE FATE

April 14—Kayford, 6 killed.
November 4—Vision, 7 killed.

January 4—Coaldale, Bluefield, 22 killed.
January 18—Detroit, Paint Creek, 18 killed.
February 8—Paralle, Fayette County, 30 killed.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 9.—At least 28 men are supposed to have met death in a terrible mine explosion in the Paralle mine of the Stewart Collieries company, near Oak Hill, Fayette county. Twenty-nine men were employed in the mine and at this hour only eleven have escaped alive. A number of bodies have been recovered near the mouth of the mine and it is certain that all the others in the mine are dead. It is impossible at this hour to ascertain the exact number of miners killed. The mine has a capacity of 800 tons per day requiring about 50 miners and inside men to operate when a full supply of cars were obtainable. The mine was not being operated in the full capacity and in addition some of the miners had come out and left for their homes. The explosion was followed by a low rumbling. No sooner had this occurred than experienced miners for several miles around realized by the trembling of the earth what had occurred and men, women and children made a wild rush for the mouth of the ill-fated mine. In a few minutes, hundreds of people were gathered at the top of the shaft and the greatest confusion prevailed. No one seems to have positive information as to how many men were in the mine when the explosion occurred and their names are not obtainable.

The explosion was terrific and it is thought that many of the miners were killed outright. The system of fans was completely wrecked by the explosion and all air was shut off from the mines, leaving the men who had not been killed by the explosion to smother. The mine is about 700 feet deep and the unfortunate miners had little chance of escape. Most of the miners caught in the mine are Hungarians or negroes who had little experience in mining. They were not expecting the pocket of gas which is nearly always discovered in mine faults in the Kanawha region.

The latest news from the scene of the explosion is to the effect that it was caused by the ignition of a body of gas in the western portion of the mine, which is badly wrecked. The men rescued were employed in the eastern portion and not exposed to the force of the explosion. Twenty-six men are still in the mine and all are supposed to be dead. In addition to one dead body recovered.

STABS TWO MORE GIRLS

St. Louis, Feb. 9.—Two more victims of the St. Louis "Jack the Ripper" have been reported to the police, making a total of twenty women and girls attacked in the last few weeks.
The younger girl was cut on the wrist. The other was not wounded, although her clothing was cut.

TO OUST DOLAN

President Mitchell Decides Convention Has the Power.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 9.—Notwithstanding the fact that President John Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers of America has decided that local district No. 5 has the power in its present convention to oust President Dolan and Vice President Bellingham, of district No. 5, President Dolan still maintains that he was elected by a referendum vote and can be removed only in the same manner. President Dolan still defies the delegates and refuses to vacate his office and a split in the district is not beyond a possibility, according to some of the delegates who announce that Dolan has received a number of telegrams and letters advising him to fight the issue, and if defeated to start an independent organization. President Mitchell's decision was made public in his instructions to National Vice President Lewis, who read them to the convention.

Anthracite Miners.
Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 9.—The anthracite scale committee of the United Mine Workers went into session here. There was a large attendance of officers from the various mining districts throughout the hard coal region. Six requests are to be made when the miners' delegates and the railroad and mine officials meet. They are as follows: An eight hour day for the company hands; a trade agreement with the operators; slight increase in wages for all classes in and about the mines; uniform scale for rock, slate, water and all other kinds of dead work. An effort is also to be made to have the questions of an improved conciliation board and the weighing of all coal, embodied in their demand.

JURY

IS OUT IN A CASE WHICH HAS OCCUPIED THE DAY IN COMMON PLEAS COURT.

The jury retired this afternoon at two o'clock in the damage case of Robert D. Jones vs. the Ft. Wayne, Lima and Van Wert Traction line. Plaintiff asked for damages in the sum of $2,000. He claims he suffered this loss as the result of injury to a number of shade trees on his property located in Delphos.

GRAND JURY REPORTS.

Nothing of a Sensational Nature in Their Findings.

John Klatte, the Well Known Attorney, Is Indicted for Embezzlement.

The grand jury, after being in session ten days, reported at two o'clock this afternoon, finding twenty-nine indictments. None of these, however, are of a sensational nature. The most sensational of the entire list is the indictment found against John Klatte, the well known attorney about town. Klatte is indicted, charged with having embezzled six hundred dollars from Mrs. Matilda Dresser. All of the other cases are of minor importance. During the session 261 witnesses were examined, covering seventy-eight cases. Twenty-nine of these were indicted and forty-nine cases were ignored. Before making its report the grand jury visited the jail and found everything there in good shape and so reported. The indictments given out for publication are as follows:

HOLDS UP GAS ORDINANCE

Chicago, Feb. 9.—The city council in a special meeting passed the ordinance directing the gas companies of the city to furnish gas to consumers at 85 cents per 1,000 feet. At present some consumers pay $1.00 per thousand and others pay 90 cents. The ordinance will not become operative at once for the reason that Mayor Dunne has declared in favor of 75 cent gas and has declared that he will not sign the 85 cent ordinance until he has investigated the operation of the gas plants in order to determine whether or not they can furnish gas at 75 cents or less, and still make a profit.

Anna Gould's Count Has Cost Her Just $2,017 a Day

In the Eleven Years of Their Married Life He Has Spent Over $9,000,000.

HERE ARE SOME OF THE WAYS CASTELLANE MADE MONEY FLY.

Bought $150,000 equipage and employed the outrider Mont-jarret, formerly in the service of the President of France.
Bought $60,000 clock.
Bought $280,000 antique cabinet.
Bought cherries at $4 per cherry.
Purchased mantelpiece for $50,000.
Purchased necklace at $100,000, half of which he gave his wife.
Spent a fortune monthly on clothes.
Bought the Little Trianon at $1,500,000.

Paris, Feb. 9.—Even if Count Boni effects a reconciliation with the Countess his income will be so cut down as to practically extinguish one of the greatest spenders that even prodigal Paris has ever known. Of all the American investments in Old World titles Anna Gould's has probably been the most costly. Reduced to cold figures the price of her title has been approximately $2,017 each and every day for the eleven years they have been married, or the equivalent every four weeks of President Roosevelt's salary for a year.

Recently Frank Work, the New York millionaire, and his daughter had a dispute that led Mrs. Roche to leave his home because for a time she spent about $350 a day, one-sixth of the daily expenditures of the Count. Furthermore, Mr. Work permitted his daughter's extravagances for only a few weeks, while George Gould's titled brother-in-law has hammered away until he has made the record of $9,000,000 for the eleven years of his married life.

Gives $4 for a Cherry.
The Count has smilingly spent $4 for a cherry and cheerfully given enough to pay the bonded indebtedness of a small city for a piece of bric-a-brac. He has made for himself a reputation as a spender that caused the famous literary men of this and other capitals to write about him, and he has inflamed the Parisian populace more than once so that he has had to placate the city by great gifts to charity.

One of his little feilices was a vaudeville performance given at Auteuil when, for 350 guests, he presented an all star bill, no act of which cost him less than $500.
Eclipse! That has been the one idea of the Count from the moment he got his hands on the Gould fortune. He waited for others to give fates or to buy jewels or antiques only that he might eclipse them, and generally he succeeded. He has lived to hear his praises sung, and the Countess paid the cost.

For his world-famed mansion on the avenue Bois de Boulogne, known as the "Red Palace," Boni spent more money than he can ever accurately tell. He liked the location so well that he paid $740,000 for the land alone, and before he had got through he had produced a palace that any kind in Europe might envy. He was told when he started to duplicate the historical Trianon at Versailles, in which Mme. Pompadour once lived, that it was going to cost tremendously, but he smiled and showed his bankbook and for spite planned to spend an additional million in furnishing the place.

New Trial is Mrs. Tollas Only Hope

Woman Must Listen For The Next Few Days to the Work of Preparing the Gallows For Jerry Rosa.

Hackensack, N. J., Feb. 9.—The second reprieve to March 12, secured for Mrs. Antoinette Tollas, was granted by Gov. Stokes at the request of the court of pardons to give opportunity for application for a new trial.
This is Mrs. Tollas' only hope of escaping the gallows, as the court practically refused to commute the sentence yesterday.
A new trial can be allowed by Judge A. O. Garrettsen of Morris-town, N. J., who presided at the first trial. The course will be to submit the new evidence as per affidavits to him and ask him to have the case retried.

Mrs. Tollas has been very despondent for the past few days. She must face a trying ordeal within a few days as she listens to the bustle attending the hanging of Jerry Rosa. The pardons court refused to interfere in his case.

Judge Empaneled Jury That Indicted His Sister

Woodville, Miss., Feb. 9.—Mrs. W. C. Stewart has been indicted on the charge of poisoning her husband, the alleged notice of the crime being the fact that she held a $10,000 life insurance policy on his life.

Mrs. Stewart is a half sister of Judge M. H. Wilkinson who empaneled the grand jury that returned the indictment.
The trial will probably take place next week.

QUIT WORK

Ten Thousand Miners Demand Adjustment of Grievances

One of the details of the palace is a set of fountains built in the garden, which he could run for ten minutes at the trifling cost of $1,000. Then he got the idea that he would be a yachtman, so he bought the yacht Valhalla for $200,000 and planned to sail her on a scale that totalled $150,000 a year. Later he had to sell this toy, but that's another part of his story.
Gives a $200,000 Banquet.
When he was elected to the Chamber of Deputies he felt so good-natured that he gave a feast that would have made Lucullus turn green. The bill was $200,000. He seemed to like that amount, for it figures frequently in his accounts.
At another time he got the idea that modern dress was all wrong and that it only required a dashing individual to revive the styles of past centuries. Toward this end he gave a flower ball and all men appeared in costumes of the Louis XVIII. period. Bill, $125,000. But then his ideas were always costly.

Punxsutawney, Pa., Feb. 9.—At a mass meeting here of miners employed by the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal and Iron company, the Jefferson and Glenfield Coal and Iron company and allied concerns, with headquarters here, it was decided unanimously not to go to work again until all grievances between the men and the companies have been adjusted. A meeting was also held at Reynoldsville, where the miners of that district voted unanimously to endorse the action taken by the miners at the Punxsutawney meeting. The miners claim that the Altoona agreement is being violated to even a greater degree than in November and the resolution calls for the suspension of work until a guarantee is given that the Altoona agreement will be lived up to in every respect. Ten thousand men are affected.

INTEREST CUT

Foreign Creditors Register a Complaint Against Haiti.

Washington, Feb. 9.—The attention of the Washington government has been called to a recent action of the Haitian government which threatens to embroil that republic in a new quarrel with her foreign creditors. Finding that her bonds were selling below par, it seems the Haitian government has cut down the interest on these bonds to correspond to the market value of the bonds. Among the sufferers are the Italian claimants, and this matter was the subject of a long conversation between Secretary Root and Mr. Montana, charge d'affaires of the Italian embassy. The secretary will take up the matter with the American minister with Haiti in an effort to bring about a satisfactory settlement.

Planning Greatest Day In History of the Lodge

KENTON CAMP OF MODERN
WOODMEN TO RECIPROCATE FOR ROYAL TREATMENT AT LIMA LAST MAY.

BIG PARADE AND BANQUET—
FIFTY CANDIDATES TO BE INITIATED BY LIMA'S CRACK
TEAM—MANY VISITORS EX-PECTED.

(Kenton News.)

In order to reciprocate for their most hospitable treatment at the hands of their brothers of Lima, the Modern Woodmen of this city have arranged for a big time on Tuesday, February 20th.

Last May the Lima camp invited the Kenton order to participate in a gala day in that city and quite a number went over from Kenton to attend the exercises. The Kenton degree team initiated quite a number of Lima candidates and a most cordial and intimate friendliness has existed between the two orders ever since. Now the Kenton lodge is about to return the compliment and the members are planning one of the biggest occasions in the history of the order.

The Lima delegation will arrive on an early evening train and will be escorted from the station by the Kenton band. In the evening a great parade is to be given, along the principal streets of the city. All the candidates for admittance to the local order will occupy very prominent positions in this, being bound together with ropes and led by a strong guard.

After the parade, the Woodmen will hold a regular lodge meeting, during which fifty candidates will be initiated by the Lima team.

After this work, an elaborate banquet is to be served. At least one hundred Woodmen are expected from Lima, and a number from surrounding Hardin county towns.

Village Blaze.

Madisonville, Ky., Feb. 9.—Fire which broke out in the business center of Providence, a town of 1,500, in Webster county, for a time threatened to wipe out nearly the entire city, but was finally brought under control with a total loss of only $10,000. The principal losses were Frank Martin, store; Montgomery Bros., building and stock; C. S. Brice, building and stock; B. F. Jennings, building and furniture stock and other small losses to adjoining property.

Shot Wife and Self.
Chicago, Feb. 9.—John Crimmins, a retired contractor, shot his wife and then shot himself. Both are expected to die. It is believed that the mind of Crimmins was affected because of illness from which he has suffered for a long time.

Age Evidence Of Disability

Famous Order of the President
Indorsed by the House.

IT PASSED THE PENSION BILL

Measure Also Put Through to Prevent
"Leaks" in Several Departments of Government—Features of the Hepburn Railroad Rate Bill As it Comes From the House.

Washington, Feb. 9.—In the house the pension appropriation proposition, carrying $139,000,000 for pensions and $1,245,000 for pension administration was taken up, debated and passed without amendment. The feature of the bill aside from the appropriation made is a provision making statute law of the famous order of the president declaring age conclusive evidence of disability. A number of other bills were passed including one providing a penalty of $5,000 and ten (10) years' imprisonment for the premature revelation of government information which might have a bearing on the market price of commodities.

Only seven votes, which were cast by Republicans, were registered against the Hepburn railroad rate bill when it passed the house. The bill as passed provides that the interstate commerce commission may have the power to establish a just and reasonable railway rate, naming the maximum rate after complaint has been made. The commission can not initiate rates. Thirty days' notice of a change in schedules must be given. A penalty of $5,000 is fixed for disobedience of the orders of the commission. Appeal from the decisions of the commission are to be made to the supreme court. The commission may demand additional reports from common carriers. The commission is to be increased by two members, the term made seven years and the salary $10,000. Witnesses may be compelled to testify in all cases.

Discrimination Alleged.
Washington, Feb. 9.—In the senate Mr. Tillman again made reference to the charge that the railroads in West Virginia were discriminating against the private coal mines and had read a letter from the governor of that state charging that the Pennsylvania company controlled all the trunk lines in West Virginia to the disadvantage of the state.

Washington, Feb. 9.—Public Printer Stillings has appointed Dr. Wm. J. Manning to be medical director of the government printing office. The position is a new one. MEETING AT COLUMBUS' CLAIMS TO HAVE FOUND A SLEEPER

Columbus, O., Feb. 9.—By a vote of 25 to 1, the City Solicitors' association has adopted a resolution disapproving the proposition of the Ohio Mayors' association that the code be amended to provide for the appointment of solicitors by the mayor, instead of their election by the people.

An alleged sleeper was pointed out in the civil service amendments offered by the mayors, which, it is claimed, would destroy the merit system and restore the spoils system. It gives the power of removal to the mayor, leaving the appeal power only to the chiefs. Elective service boards composed of one, three or five members were favored.

The hearing today dealt with alleged Mormon influence in business affairs and with the endowment house ceremony. Three witnesses testified that they had taken the obligation administered and as they recalled it there was a variance in the form as it related to an agreement to avenge the death of the prophet.

Bill Signed By Governor

Freiner's Two-Cent Fare Proposition Now a Law.

QUICK ACTION BY SENATE

County and State Salary Measures Make Their Appearance in Each Branch

Meek Launches Cigaret Bill—Investigation of Cincinnati.—Proceedings of Legislature.

Columbus, O., Feb. 9.—Governor Fattison has signed the Freiner two-cent fare bill and the measure is now a law, becoming effective March 10. It passed the senate by unanimous vote. Under the provisions of the bill the two-cent rate shall apply for all distances in excess of five miles. The fare for one and two miles will be five cents, for three and four miles 10 cents, for five miles 15 cents. It must be either five cents or a multiple of five for distances less than five miles.

Meek's senate bill, abolishing the levy of the board of review to fix the 1937 levy in city school districts, as passed by the house.

The house passed the bill of Reynolds of Cuyahoga, prohibiting advertising for labor to take the place of strikers or locked-out employees without making this condition of advertisement in the advertisement. It also prohibits the employment of non-commissioned guards or police in or about places where a labor difficulty exists.

House resolutions offered: Mr. Hill of Columbiana, constitutional amendment, providing that after 1938 all persons desiring to become voters in the state of Ohio must be able to read and speak English. Mr. McCord of Columbiana, resolution, congress to pass a bill to consolidate the third and fourth classes of postage at the new rate of one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof.

The house taxation committee reported the inheritance tax bill by Reed of Wood, raising the exemption to $10,000.

JUSTICE MOVES SWIFTLY

Mount Holly, N. J., Feb. 9.—Rutha Johnson, the negro who was arrested in Baltimore about a fortnight ago charged with killing Miss Florence W. Allison, near Moorestown, N. J., on January 18, was placed on trial, convicted of murder in the first degree and immediately sentenced to be hanged two weeks from today. Because of the atrocity of the crime it was feared by the authorities that there would be a hostile demonstration against the defendant when he would be brought into court, but no unseemly incident marked the trial. Johnson, who had been in mortal fear of mob violence, sat unmoved throughout the proceedings. Johnson took the stand in his own defense and repeated the confession he made in Baltimore. He denied that he assaulted the woman and said he had no intention of killing her.

$100 REWARD, $100. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundations of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY, & CO., Toledo, O.

The Fostoria-Fremont electric line is assured, says the Fostoria Times of Tuesday.

The road will be built this spring, according to information The Times secured today from local men prominently connected with the project. The actual construction of the line will probably be started by April 1 and the promoters propose to use every method to forward the movement.

Engineer J. W. Reigle of Findlay, who surveyed the proposed route, came to Fostoria Tuesday morning and he and G. H. McDonald, who represents the financiers of the project, who are said to be backed by the Western Ohio, left for a trip over the line. They want to attend the last details of the preparations for the line prior to letting the contracts. The surveying was completed some time ago and the rights of way are all under contract. Assurances are given that the construction will be started by April 1.

It was rumored that F. W. Adams as the general manager of the Toledo, Fostoria & Findlay line, had been given the contract for the building of the road, but Mr. Adams, when seen, gave statements to the contrary. Mr. Adams authorized this statement:

"I understand that the Western Ohio is anxious to have the Fostoria-Fremont line built in order to afford a direct route from Lima to Cleveland, and that they would like to have us build it. We, however, have taken no action toward building the road, but would be extremely glad to have it built, as it would afford us, also, a direct connection from Findlay to the east."

The Western Ohio Railway company has made a test of an artificial product resembling wood, which may be used in the manufacture of railroad ties for electric roads. It is the invention of J. F. Laufer, of Lima, and is made by compressing waste of any description. It has all the qualities of wood, can be made in any shape, is nondestructible, non-soluble in water and is, in addition, a non-conductor of electricity. The test was entirely satisfactory.

Northern Ohio school teachers are maturing plans for attending the mid-summer meeting of the National Educational association to be held at San Francisco, July 19 to 23 inclusive. In making the trip to the coast the teachers will travel over the Big Four as the initial line. They will rendezvous at Cleveland, starting from there on Thursday morning June 28.

The itinerary will include stops in Colorado, New Mexico, at the Grand Canyon, Los Angeles, Monterey and Palo Alto.

There is now under construction between Muncie and Portland, Ind., a traction line that will be ready for operation, it is thought, in about thirty days. This leaves thirty miles in that locality between the Indiana line and the Celina branch of the Western Ohio. The contract for the grading across this thirty-mile spur has been let and the work of building the road will begin at once. When finished the links of traction line will parallel the Lake Erie and Western railroad all the way from Indianapolis, Ind., to Fremont, O.

Railway Sold.

Hutchinson, Kan., Feb. 9.—L. E. Walker, president of the Texas Southern railroad, and agent for the sale of the property which is in the hands of a receiver, sold the road to eastern capitalists. It is said the price was one and one-half million dollars. The road runs from Marshall to Winsboro, Texas, a distance of 71 miles, with branches, making a total of more than a hundred miles. It is said it is to be part of a proposed north and south road to connect Canada and the Gulf.

CONSUL TAIGNY TALKS

Washington, Feb. 9.—M. Taigny, French charge at Caracas, Venezuela, left Washington for New York whence he will sail Saturday for Paris. In an interview he said: "It is impossible to maintain satisfactory relations with a man like Castro. His chief object is to get money, no matter from where or in what way." When asked what he thought of an invasion of Venezuela by a French army, M. Taigny shrugged his shoulders. "It is an extremely difficult country to fight in," he said. "The country is very mountainous and though Caracas is from the coast only nine miles as the crow flies, the road to the capital is about 25 miles and easily defensible. The people love nothing more than a fight. France is not likely to embark on such an expedition as long as she can use other remedies."

The Basket Ball
Game Last Night
Was Ridiculously
Funny and the

MANAGER OF THE CIRCLEVILLE
AGGREGATION GATHERED HIS HEAVY WEIGHT YOUTHS TO-GETHER AND DUG OUT THIS MORNING.

That game of basket ball put up by the Circleville heavy weight youths at the Auditorium last night with the White Stars presented a pathetic scene, even Harry Strohm molting to tears. The visitors from the south ventured too far up state. They got beyond their class and in the latter half of the game the local lads made a May flower party of them. But what's the use taking up any more space. Here's the result in brief:

Circleville 14.—Williams, Rowe 4, Tool, 2, Roundhouse, 1, Wilson, Lima 14.—Laudick 5; Shaw, 7, Akerman, 9; Witmer, Klump, 1. Free throws: Shawe 2.

GOOD CONTEST MONDAY.

Far different from the exhibition put up last night by the visitors will be the contest next Monday and Tuesday nights. The crack Cincinnati team will be here on those dates for games with the White Stars and if the local boys, who are as fast as anything in this section, pull one of the two games they will have to go some.

HOME DESTROYED

FIRE REDUCING THE RESIDENCE OF JAMES BAXTER TO ASHES.

Fire completely destroyed the beautiful country home of James Baxter, Sr., in Amanda township yesterday morning.

The fire was caused, it is believed, from a defective flue and was discovered about nine o'clock. With no means to fight the conflagration, the building being a two-story frame structure, rapid headway was gained and the gathering men of the neighborhood had hard work saving the household furniture, which was accomplished with but slight damage resulting.

The residence was completely destroyed, burning to the ground. The loss is estimated at $3,000, not one dollar of which is covered by insurance.

BANQUET TONIGHT

PLANS COMPLETED FOR MEETING OF MEN AT MARKET STREET CHURCH.

The final arrangements have been completed for the banquet to be given the men of the Market Street, Presbyterian church by the ladies, and the indications point to its being one of the most successful events ever given by that church. The committee in charge have received the acceptance of about one hundred and fifty men. The banquet is scheduled for six-thirty and will start exactly on time, and it is urged that the men come direct from their business to the church and get there as near six o'clock as possible.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Human Hearts" will be presented this season with an entirely new scenic equipment. Mr. W. E. Nankerville, at great expense had photographic views for the new scenes taken in the hills of Arkansas, in the locality where the scenes of the play are laid, so as to have the production as true to life as possible. These photographs were turned over to the scenic artist and the result has been most satisfactory. Mr. Nankerville also commissioned the photographer to pick up anything in the way of properties that might lend color to any of the scenes. The artist acquired an anvil and bellows from the village blacksmith shop, that were once used by the prototype of Tom Logan, the hero of the play. "Human Hearts" in all its new scenic splendor, will be seen at Faurot Opera House next Saturday matinee and night.

Next Monday evening will be seen at the Faurot Opera House the play of "Dora Thorne," which has been attracting considerable attention on account of the popularity of the novel "Dora Thorne" as a story is too well known for comment, but it must be admitted that the playwright ling footed at his feet, the long dominant woman in her wake. She ceased to tremble and fell on her knees beside him.

"Let me help you," she said, and her voice was calm and clear, her fingers firm. When his coat was off he sank again, exhausted, breathing hard.

"Get away my shirt—get at that hole and plug it," he commanded. "Anything that will fill it. You'll find some where there in that box—in the window."

"His shirt was wet with blood, and the girl clipped it away with steady hands. He looked down at the wound and then smiled up to her. "I'm all right. It was a steel jacketed 30-30. It won't bleed much, and it's above my hip. I'll fill him yet."

"The driver, wild of eye and much rumpled of hair, scrambled into the room. "Who did it? Who did it?"

"Never mind who did it. Plug this hole," commanded Raymond. "Bring some cold water and pour on it."

"Ann saw that the driver's wife was too muddled to permit of proper action, and while her tense nerves quivered she, bathed the wound, which was already ceasing to bleed.

"Turn me over, cap," called Raymond. "You'll find another vent on the other side."

Louis and the driver turned him gently on his face, and Ann was horrified to find an ugly wound than the other. With a sickening gasp she saw, she hurried to cut away the shirt and staunch the blood as before.

Raymond was recovering from the first shock of the wound, and though his breathing was troubled, his mind was clear. "Now, Watson," he said to the driver, "spread some blankets under me, and then you go out to the porch and take my brown mare, with the saddle on, and slide out for Wallace and bring a doctor. Don't wait the mare—just let her take her gait—don't ride her back. Leave her there."

After the driver had helped him to a bed on a blanket Raymond added, "Now I've got to be quiet and wait. What's all there about it? He looked at Ann. "You can go to bed and sleep. Youngster, you're in for sentinel duty tonight."

Ann interrupted him. "You must not talk, not another word! Life perfectly still. We will keep cool bandages on your wound till the doctor comes." He submitted to her directions and lay quiet, moving only to allow her to change the compress. Louis, when he knew what was happening, became almost as deaf as Ann and relieved her of the painful task of replacing the bandages. But the powerful frame of the ranchman grew each moment more inert, and at last they could not dress the wound at his back.

CHAPTER V.

FOR a long time the silence remained unbroken except now and then when the girl bent over the silent figure to ask, "Can I do anything for you?" Each time she listened with added fear, hoping eagerly for his voice. "Oh, I wish we could do something," she whispered now and again to Louis.

The boy, worn out with his day's excitement, struggled manfully to keep awake, but as the night deepened slumber rose about him like a wreath of benumbing incense. His sense of what had taken place dulled, his head nodded and drooped, and at last Ann lowered him to the floor, where he slept, his cheek pillowed upon her feet.

Again the singularity of the chance, the absurd unreality of the situation, came upon the self-contained girl, reminding her to a sort of hysterical laughter. Here now she sat—Ann Rupert, most conventional of persons—in a rude ranch house, alone with a strange, rough man sleeping in a deathlike trance before her.

The minutes elongated like bands of rubber, attaining the length of quarter hours, and the night stretched away into horrid distance as she sat busily waiting, hoping each moment for deliverance, expecting each instant to hear the swift beating of hoofs, the hoarse laughter of the mob; but only the wind serpents hissed and the wolf howled.

At last immobility became intolerable, and, lowering Louis' head to the floor, she gently placed his doubled coat beneath it and with a mighty effort of the will bent again above the pallid man, so tragic in his stupor, and whispered:

"Are you still suffering? Can I do anything for you?"

He turned his head slowly and with a glance which made her shiver answered: "No, I have ceased to bleed. I am going to pull through if my pulse keeps down. Won't you take it?"

Timidly taking his brown wrist in her left finger tips she tried to count the pulsing of his blood.

He waited a little time in silence, then said, "It's there, but it's weak. Don't you feel it?"

"Yes, it is more regular now," she answered.

"I'm not going to die," he continued in a hoarse, flat tone. "I could get up and mount a horse right now, only I'd bleed if I did. It's hard to keep quiet, but I'm going to do it. I can't afford to die now. You've roused me. There's something in the world for me to do."

"You must not talk," she whispered. "Please—it will do you harm."

She put her hand impulsively on his forehead as if he were a child, and he closed his eyes and lay in silence for several minutes. When she withdrew her palm he muttered, "Leave it there. It is so cool and soft."

"Would you like a wet cloth on your head?"

"No—only your hand—if you don't mind."

Her feeling toward him at the moment was like that she manifested toward her brother. "I don't mind, if it helps you," she answered, but a flush rose to her face.

"The boys will come in soon, and then you can go to bed and rest. I'm sorry to trouble you. You can go now. I'm all right," he said.

"I shall not leave you," she firmly replied.

"You're mighty good," he said simply.

The night wore on interminably. At a little past 3, faint and far, arose the cheerful crowing of a cock. Her heart burned with joy—the morning was near! As she waited the light came and voices, faint and far away, touched her ear, and then slowly, moving in a disorderly squad, the weary light of flames came riding down the slope and across the meadow.

The herdsmen did not ride up to the house, as she expected them to do, but turned aside toward the stables, and she could hear them as they dropped their saddles and turned their tired ponies loose. "Surely they will come now!" Then all was still save the crowing of the cocks and that sad howling of the wolf on the hill.

Unable to endure the suspense, she slipped across the floor and hurried out toward the corral, her heart in her throat with fear of the body on the floor. She ran as silently as possible, as if to avoid rousing some fierce animal, and was close upon the men before they saw her.

"What's that?" she heard one quick, keen voice cry out.

Then each man rose from the heap of blankets wherein he lay curled like an arctic dog.

Ann answered them breathlessly, "Come to the house, quick. Mr. Raymond is shot!"

Their responses were like bullets: "Shot! Who shot him?"

"Some one fired out of the darkness—he was standing in the doorway. I'm all alone. He must have helped!"

"Where's Watson?"

"Gone for the doctor."

Shaking loose from his bed, Baker started on the run for the house, but Ann cried out sharply: "Wait! Go quietly. You must not excite him."

And, walking beside him, she returned to the house, and in a sort of daze the other herdsmen silently followed. The jangle of Baker's big spurs, familiar and penetrating, called Raymond to a knowledge of his surroundings.

He turned his head and looked at the men in a way that made them shrink and asked: "How's the fire? Did you stop it?"

Baker replied, "Yes, we got her under."

Raymond half closed his eyes. "I'm glad you're here. This lady needs a rest. Somebody did for me. Baker, you and Jones and Sklar stay here. Perry, you saddle a horse and get Abe and his wife. Miss Rupert, you go to bed; the boys will look after me now. I can't let you wear yourself out for me."

But Ann could not so easily be put aside from her plain duty. "No, I will stay till the doctor comes."

At last, when the wounded man was lying comfortably on a thick pile of blankets and the white light of the morning filled the cabin, Ann yielded to his entreaties, went to her room and threw herself down upon her bed with a sense of having put all her easeful, careless girlhood behind her. It was as if she had suddenly been flung into a gray and bitter sea far from shore.

Louis, who had been roused by the return of the herdsmen and who sat watching their slow and painfully cautious handling of the sufferer with the auto, unemotional gaze of a sleepy kitten, followed his sister into the inner room and stood in silence till his bewilderment left him and his perplexity crystallized into words. Then he said:

"Jupiter! I didn't know you could do such things. What do you think? Is he going to die?"

"I don't know, I hope not. I've done all I can."

Ann must have dropped asleep there after, for when she woke the horizontal rays of the flaming sun filled the room and the loud and hearty voice of a woman could be heard out in the kitchen. Her words came distinctly to Ann's ears. "Now, Rob, you've got me to deal with. I'll cuff your ears if you don't do as I say. You've got to eat to keep your strength up."

Ann rose hastily, but paused before the closed door with a new and singular timidity. The coming of another woman made her own position embarassed. With a return of resolution she unlocked the door and met the big gray eyes of a tall, broad-shouldered, shaggy woman, who stood over Raymond with a bowl of steaming broth in her hand. She was rather deaf and dumb, but Ann perceived that she was capable and good tempered, a natural nurse, experienced in the ways of the border.

"Good morning," she called, and her infectious and many of her phrases were masculine. "You must 'a' had a right hard night of it. Friend of the Barretts, Rob tells me."

Her familiarity and the essential commonness of her tone repelled Ann, who asked, with cool dignity, "Can I do anything?"

"Not a thing. I'm Mrs. Scribbins, Rob's nearest neighbor. We come around in the morning we heard of this thing, for Rob's a mighty good man and neighbor."

Ann repeated and held out her hand. "I'm glad to see you, Mrs. Scribbins. I'm Miss Rupert, and this is my brother."

She turned to Louis, who had crept to her side, pale and silent.

Mrs. Scribbins shook hands, carefully guarding her brother. "I don't see how you kept Rob down. I've had to just about throttle him once or twice since I came. He's a headstrong cuss and hates being bossed or nussed."

"Has the doctor come?"

"Good Lord, no! But I've sent Abe up the road. That fool Watson is more'n likely to get lost and never get in. Even if he did he couldn't get a doctor here before noon and that Wallace doctor ain't worth the powder to blow him up anyway. We need a bone doctor from Valley Springs. As soon as Don Barnett hears of this he'll come a-runnin' with the best there is in the Springs."

Raymond lay on his pile of blankets, his face expressionless as that of a dead man, but his eyes called to the girl, and she bent to ask, "Are you better?"

"His lips moved a little. She bowed lower, and he whispered, "Yes—bring Don."

"They've gone for him."

"They must hurry." Then he added, "Don't leave me."

With a conviction that he knew he was about to die, she spoke, and her tone was tense with a desire to help him. "I will not leave you. Do not worry."

He closed his eyes again and lay so still, so breathless, it seemed that he had entered upon the last coma, beyond the reach of any medicine.

Louis, awed quite out of his sprightly self, drew Ann aside and whispered, "How is he?"

"He is worse. Oh, I wish the doctor would come!"

"The boys say that big, speckled fellow did it. He had it in for Mr. Raymond. Do you know, Perry, the Mexican boy, took a horse and was going to chase them up, but the boys wouldn't let him. They've sent word to the railway, and they'll have Spec-kie before night. Uncle Don said that these fellows were only hired men, but seems to me they're a good deal like the old time cowboys."

CHAPTER VI.

BARNETT was at breakfast when a telegram was laid at his elbow by the maid. He opened it leisurely, thinking it some matter of business, but his hands stiffened as he read:

Go! Raymond is shot. Send best doctor in town quick. WATSON.

For just a moment he sat in silence, then rose and walked slowly to his library. Seating himself before the little desk on which stood a movable telephone receiver, he began to "make things hum." He reached his friend, Dr. Braide, and set him in motion. He ordered out his racing automobile. He telegraphed Watson to take fresh horses and return by way of Junction and get the best doctor there. "Burn the air as you go," he added.

After giving orders for his valise to be packed he walked up to Mrs. Barnett's room and kissed her good morning without betraying his excitement.

"I'm going out to the ranch," he said. "The boys are having trouble with the hay, and I want to see how they're coming on. You won't mind, will you?"

"Of course not, Don. I'm going to be all right in a few hours. I'm glad you're going. You can bring Ann home. You should have gone with her yesterday."

"I see that now," he answered dryly. "It will be a startling world for her. Well, I'm off. Better stay in bed to-day. I'll be back by tomorrow night, I think."

When he took his seat in his big, fast, powerful auto car his face was set in grim lines. "Is she all right, Henry?" he asked of his engineer.

"In perfect order, sir."

"She needs to be. This is to be a record breaker."

With his big goggles over his eyes and his cap drawn low down on his forehead, Barnett seized the wheel, and the ponderous, panting organism began to move. Wheeling into the street, he let on the full power of the engine, and when he drew up at Braide's gate the mechanism was hot with speed, its joints oiled and frictionless—no roaring trim.

Braide, a small, smiling, trig young fellow, came out. "What is it all about, Don?"

"Got your tools?"

He pointed at his bag, "Emergency kit."

"Then all aboard!"

Henry leaped out and caught up the bag, while the doctor climbed in beside Barnett on the front seat.

"This looks ominous. How much of a trip is it going to be?"

"Just a short run," answered Barnett as he swung his shaggy red bulk of the auto M. G. M. motor, which led him over the hill.

Beneath the seat the puff and click of the pump and the purr of the engine grew each moment more furious until all sounds ceased into a humming roar. The lead air of the morning stole the riders joyfully. The flaming sunlight slanted upon them with growing heat, and backward, beneath them, the sod swept like a tawny carpet, while Barnett, watchful, intent, composed worked the levers and valves with the skill of a practical engineer. When they had crossed the two railroads and were climbing the long, low ridge he casually remarked:

"My foreman, Raymond, is shot, and you've got to pull him through."

"Great Scott, Don, I can't afford the time! It'll take all day. If I'd known—"

"You'd have gone just the same," as asserted Barnett calmly. The machine was again running swiftly. "You're here, and you aren't jump out, and you might as well enjoy yourself. This is to be a record run. I'm going to pull it, by noon."

Braide was young and a man of red blood and shining eyes. "Very well; go it, old sport! I can stand it if you can. I'll make it a holiday and charge you double for every hour."

When they had reached the top of the pass between two pinnacled hills the road could be seen for miles, driving straight into the mist of the mighty Missouri valley.

"It's all the way down grade from here to Omaha," remarked Barnett. "I could make me run in two hours, only I mustn't invite a breakdown."

"You seem to value your foreman."

"He's something more than my foreman. He's a splendid chap. You've met him—the fellow who went on the 'coyote drive' with us."

"Why, certainly I remember him. I've met him at the club. But he was very recent. I didn't get at him. Who is he? How does he come to be your foreman?"

"He's a little slow about telling his own life story, but he's all right. I think I know the cause of this shooting. He got into trouble with a couple of fellows out there, and one of them has done him."

As they entered upon a particularly smooth stretch of road the man at the wheel relaxed his hold and said, with deep feeling: "I don't mind saying that I'm anxious about Rob. I've grown mighty fond of him. He's not one giving fellow. I don't know quite why he is here, but I trust him and count myself fortunate to have him on the place. He made $40,000 for me last year on hay and cattle, and must have a little bunch laid up for himself. I've felt for a year that I ought to put Rob into something better. I owed it to him. Now, if he dies— He broke off and bent to his wheel to hide the emotion that made his lips quiver.

It lacked ten minutes of noon as Barnett rose above the last great wave of the tawny sea and sighted the clump of cottonwoods in which his ranch buildings sat, and two minutes later he swept into the yard and up to the door amid a throng of singularly silent cowboys and ranchers. The first one to speak was Mrs. Scribbins, who exclaimed:

"Jerusalem the golden! You hair's come from home this mornin' in that doggone thunder cart, have ye?"

"That's what. How's Rob?"

"Quiet as mice; but I hope ye brought help."

Barnett rose from his seat stiffly and climbed painfully down, while Braide seized his case of tools and hurried into the cabin.

Barnett, feeling a small hand gripping his arm, turned to meet Louis. "Hello," said he. "How is Ann?"

"She's all right. She saved Rob's life," answered the boy.

Ann, who stood just outside the door, answered very quietly: "I am quite well. How is Jeannette?"

"I left her feeling very well. But tell me the truth, is Rob dying?"

"No," said Ann. "But he needs help. He was shot last evening and has lain all night in pain. He is very weak now."

Barnett hurried into the hot dusk of the ranch house, smiling of the dinner, which was cooking, and bent above his foreman.

"Hello, Rob! How do you feel?"

MEDICS

Of Allen County Decide on a Get Rich Quick Scheme Last Night And Advance Prices all Along the Line

Unless it is Really Necessary Don't Get Sick.

ESTABLISH A BOYCOTT ON THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND KEEP IT UP JUST AS LONG AS YOU CAN.

The Medics of Allen county, those gentlemen who are too bashful to see their names in print have come forward, emerged from the darkness as it were, and have advanced rates all along the line. They have advanced the prices because business is decidedly dull and collections bad. They have advanced rates because they are much lower than charged in other cities. So dig down and produce. Here's the revised schedule as decided upon at last night's meeting:

$1.50 for each visit to a home and $2 when the visit is made between 9 o'clock p. m. and 7 a. m.; office examination, 50c; insurance examination, $2; office and prescriptions, 75c; obstetrics, $15. The association further passed a resolution requiring all railway surgeons to make a charge of $1.50 for each patient attended in time of an accident.

But it will be with the medical profession as it is with the drug stores, there will be a bargain counter somewhere along the line and if you don't care to pay the increased fee look up the "quit rate man." He'll send you to the happy hunting grounds at the "marked down from 49c. figure."

The Merchant's Band will give their next popular concert Sunday evening, February 11, at Opera House.

DISPATCH

From New Jersey Tells of a Divorce

WHICH WILL BE HEARD BEFORE JUDGE CUNNINGHAM TOMORROW.

The following is a press dispatch from Jersey City, N. J., and concerns Lima people:

Society of Jersey City and New York was startled today when it became known that Mrs. Irene Goodwin Foye, who was a bridesmaid when Anna Gould married Count Boni De Castellane, had entered suit through her lawyer, Chas. Tannebaum, of 13 West 12nd street, New York, for divorce from her husband, Frank M. Foye, who, with their two children, is at present in Lima, Ohio. Mrs. Foye has been living quietly with her brother in 88th street, New York, and the news of the break in her domestic relations came as an entire surprise.

Frank M. Foye was one of the famous Foye family of Jersey City, after whom Foye Place, in the exclusive Bergen section is named. He was known as the "best dressed man in Jersey" at the time of his marriage and was in the real estate business at Bergen avenue and Montgomery street. His family was wealthy, but the real estate business was handed down from father to son for generations. After his office burned in 1900 he gave up business and lived in Jersey City until 1902, when, with his wife and two children, he went west.

If one man offers to sell you an article for $1 and another man makes you a price of 50c for the same article, which man will you patronize? We are making just such cuts in drugs at our store. We do a straight drug business and are not seeking to double our money on every sale.

same thing in the Allen county courts, where he charged desecration, and asked for the custody of the children.

To contest the latter feature of the case is the purpose of Mrs. Foye's trip to Lima. She will ask the court for the children. She is a wealthy woman, it is said, and abundantly able to provide for them luxuriously. On returning to Lima, Mr. Foye associated himself with the John Foye Realty company, with which he has been connected for a year or more.
